A tech savvy, self-taught web developer who has built a solid interest in enhancing, developing and acquiring a new skill set in the field of web development. As an avid tech enthusiast, having a solid interest in problem solving, research & development, evolving software integrations and a design patterns and implementation. While having no industry experience, being predominately self-taught, if applicable, I would be inclined to casual or weekend-based work in order to develop the skills necessary to provide value and perform at an industry level.
